Lessons/Learning Moments:

back you may need to go before choosing the other option

It's important to give the rest of the team a full and intuitive

Sometimes an approach will hit a wall, and there's no limit to how far understanding of the design of a software change, so that anyone with a different perspective can catch any possible problems with that design

It's valuable to keep track of what caused failure in a certain approach, approaches (this way, failures are extremely valuable) so that you can identify if that weak point is present in any new
